

JSW Steel's plant expansion project delays due to a shortage of workers

Despite lockdown and coronavirus pandemic, JSW Steel is still working and has never halted its manufacturing capacity expansion at the Dolvi plant in Maharashtra. Currently, the company is facing a problem that is a shortage of labor, they need about 15,000 workers to continue the construction work, meanwhile, they have less than a third of the required manpower at the site.