Telegram had increased its security to protests for democracy and freedom. They had introduced another tool to hide the identity of admins following the Admin rights to enable Batman mode. This mode helps the admins to hide their identity from the group members from the list. The messages sent by the admins contain the signature of the group name, similar to the channel posts.

A comment button is added to Telegram to make posts on channels with discussion groups which make it easier for admins for civil conversation. If a person is not a member of the channel's discussion group, they can get a notification on their replies on their comments through a new chat called Replies.
